

WAVE TERRORIZES NAPLES AND TOWN OF AVELLINO

DISASTER ARE GROWING

damage in the town of Canosa but apparently no persons injured. Campo Basco experienced heavy damage with some killed or injured in the three towns affected. Romans had a scare about 7 o'clock this morning, when unusually strong gusts of wind rattled windows and slammed doors. Thinking it was some turn for a quake, some persons started out of their houses, only to perceive that they were safe after all.

Perfect Victim! late today told the correspondent for the Associated Press that the entire official estimate of 1392 deaths in the province of Avellino had risen to 1607, bringing the total officially listed dead up to 1963.

BELLS SILENT

The town of Avellino, high up in the Apennine Mountains and worst stricken of the countryside, was given over all day to funerals. The absence of tolling church bells was striking, but the church bellfry was so shaken by the quake that their sextons did not dare to ring them. Tragic processions wound their way through the streets and filled with debris and rubble.

Relatives of those in the danger zone were frantically trying to get in touch with them, but only a few of the many messages could go through as there was only one telephone and telegraph line to the local prefecture and police station. During the day the underscrutiny of public works and Senator Crenshaw, president of the Italian Red Cross, reached the scene in the interior of the worst of the disaster and organized relief measures. Today a column of Pacific motor trucks from Naples arrived in Avellino and distributed bread, cornmeal, milk and medicine. Squadrons composed of doctors and druggists worked their hardest to ward off illness. A number of tank trucks rushed water to the towns whose supplies were cut off.

100,000 HOMELESS

Every branch of Italy's organized forces have been mobilized to cope with the tragic situation. More than 100,000 persons made homeless by the quake. Airplane flights over the province afforded and reported to the authorities so that the distribution of relief might be handled more efficiently. The hotels were crowded with officials, doctors and nurses busy in helping the stricken populace find shelter or in preventing the possibility of disease and epidemics.

Boldly police and firemen worked frantically to bring relief to the populace in the regions around Naples and Potenza, and hastened by the earth convulsions. A stern guard above Naples added to the fears of some as its summit flowered daily in the sky.

The volcano of Pozzuolo, a small mountain obscured by flames of Vesuvius was in eruption today. When the hurricane struck Naples today the residents were still nervous over the earthquake and they were badly frightened by the newest outbreak of nature. Many had spent a restless night in the parks and public squares. Fighting cracks with their hands, full sails had to point their noses northward in order to escape damage. The storm subsided as quickly as it arrived, and a dreary drizzle set in.

Naples had the appearance of a city under a war-time regime, with soldiers guarding the damaged buildings to ward off the curious and flags flying everywhere at half-mast.

MANY JOBLESS

In addition to the frightful loss caused by the tremors in buildings already wrecked, more hardship in the form of unemployment was forecast by the action of the authorities in Naples. Many factories and offices were closed by official action, the government considering it would not be safe to permit work in the weakened structures. The Duchess of Aosta, who yesterday visited the injured in the hospitals of Naples and did much to calm the people of the city, went today into the stricken interior. She was greatly moved, at Arlano, at sight of the orphan asylum which caved in and killed scores of little children.

Hundreds of colorless wept when the Duchess knelt and placed an ivory crucifix which she wore on the body of a little girl buried in the debris.

An impressive funeral was held for the four persons who died in Naples as a result of the quake and in commemoration of the two who were killed at Salerno and one at Trani.

Cardinal Ascalesi, archbishop of Naples, at the conclusion of the service, brought a silver bust of St. Genesio, the city's patron, to the steps of the cathedral and blessed the great crowd which had assembled to mourn for the victims.

Some instances entire villages were almost obliterated. Villanova lost more than 300 persons, including the mayor and all of his family.

The town should have been taken, a much smaller community, in the south of Italy.

Many Towns Heaps of Ruins in Avellino

Avellino, Italy, July 24 (AP)—Refugees from Arino, the population of which before yesterday's earthquake was 8000, today described that town as a heap of ruins.

Houses that were left standing, they asserted, must be torn down because they were unsafe.

Several hamlets, including Plain, Taverna, Martre, Spanton, Glorietta, Campo Raso and Ormatto, constituting several sections of Arino, were virtually wiped out.

No person was killed at Canale, a miracle, for 90 per cent of the buildings of that place were rendered uninhabitable.

FLOODS FEARED

That this town of Arino was in the open ground near the Ofanto river today, it was believed that if the river crest has always been in care for its own. On one occasion when the Red Cross sent $5000 to Italy for relief work the money was politely returned with the message that it was not needed.

ALLEN, CURLEY OFFER AID TO STATE LEGISLATURE

Resolution for Baby Volsstead Repeal to Be Offered by Hyde Park Man

Cable to Rome in Behalf of the Committee Formed at State House Meeting

With Governor Allen and Mayor Curley as honorary chairmen, a committee was formed today in the Governor's office at the State House to work in co-operation with the American Red Cross in disseminating information on the earthquake disaster in southern Italy.

The committee will hold itself ready for any calls that may be made upon it.

The original purpose of the meeting was to start a relief fund, but it was decided to have the committee take up the matter of the Italian Government, though grateful for the offer of aid, had declined to give assistance.

RESOLVE TOGETHER

Governor Allen suggested that the committee be not dissolved but kept together until the disaster of persons here who are anxious about relatives in the earthquake area.

"It think is an excellent idea," approved by Curley together, the mayor said.

James J. Phelan agreed with this and said he had called Edward M. Hearn, an American citizen, living in the business district of Rome, also if the Knights of Malta could be of any assistance.

Mr. Phelan then suggested that a sub-committee be formed, and this was approved.

MESSAGE TO ROME

At his suggestion also, it was decided to send a cable message to the Italian government, signed by the Governor and the mayor, stating that a committee has been formed to act in any way agreeable to the Italian government.

James J. Phelan for the American Red Cross said that his organization stood ready to help.

Others at the meeting included Judges Joseph H. Zottoli, Frank Carroll and John C. O'Connell.

Cardinal O'Connell has ordered a special collection in all churches of the diocese Sunday, August 3.

The letter will be read at all masses next Sunday.

The Cardinal has sent a message of condolence to the Pope.

AUTO ALMOST WRECKED

Rudy's car was almost wrecked on the way to Marlboro last night.

He was nearly mobbed upon approaching the Lyndon ballroom and he rewarded the threat by turning his back on the crowd and side out for their entertainment. This meant an anxious evening for him and he well earned his long foregone sleep.

GETS JOYOUS WELCOME

He wouldn't say so, but it may be surmised that the cheers of a couple of thousand adoring young women were still ringing in his ears when he awoke.

Ten special police were also on hand, but the crowd broke through and Herald swept Rudy from the hall on a tide of popularity. Then small boys dropped from their perches in the trees and ground parents put down the toys they had held up to see the show.

The show for those who couldn't get in the hall was over.

LAKE SURVIVORS TELL TALE OF HORROR AS TOWNS ARE HIT

PRAYED AS EARTH NEARED

Escaping Gas Fumes Cost the Lives of Many and Famed Structures Are Destroyed

Rome, July 24 (INS)—The inevitable tales of horror following in the wake of every major catastrophe appalled Italy today as first hand reports of its latest earthquake dribbled in.

Eye-witnesses returned with accounts of entire towns collapsing under the violent shocks like so many card structures, burying whole families beneath tons of stone and steel.

Soldiers everywhere in the devastated areas are estimating the injured from the debris, and bringing out the dead as well. Grief-stricken relatives are rushing madly about in an attempt to identify those caught in the shambles.

Escaping gas, it was related, presented one of the worst dangers in several of the stricken cities, and many are believed to have succumbed to its fumes.

Shrill shrieks also added heavily to the loss of life. Trembling and sheer fright also added heavily to the loss of life. Trembling and sheer fright also added heavily to the loss of life.

Hundreds threw themselves upon their knees and prayed loudly while masonry thundered about them.

FAMILIES WIPED OUT
Those who reached demolished Lacedonia in the southern end of the stricken Benevento province reported only one-fifth of the houses remaining standing, these being badly damaged. At Villanova two structures remained upright, grim reminders of the peaceful rural community that nestled here two days ago and again.

As irreparable loss to the world, will be the historic structures which crashed into the dust after centuries of resistance to the elements and climate. At Melfi the big castle of Frederick II broke apart and became a ruin. At Ariano the ancient castle which has been the pride of the city for centuries fell into a heap of stones and debris. Bombs of falling buildings and objects of art also were destroyed.

CONVENT DESTROYED
The world famed Franciscan convent at Casertaville, well known to American tourists, was one of the historic places that went down to the dust with the first convulsions of the earth. No casualties occurred.

The Italian newspapers were very conservative in recounting the details of the tragedy, apparently the restraining hand of the censor has already been clamped upon the Italian press.

Engine Room Blaze Menaces Water Liner
San Francisco, July 24 (AP)—The liner President Polk at a pier here today has the engine room on fire and imperiled the lives of passengers.

The ship, which is equipped with gas masks and chemical tanks extinguished the blaze.

A Martins died from suffocation in the dense smoke spread through the boiler room. About 50 survivors aboard the ship were sent ashore when the fire was discovered.

Boy Solves Mystery of Missing Letters
New Haven, July 24 (INS)—The mystery of the failure of mail to arrive at a large boulevard apartment house here has been solved by the detection of a youngster of less than 14 who had stolen the letters, but not only admitting responsibility for the situation but has turned over large quantities of letters that he had hidden. It is thought he might return the mail for a reward.

New Sub Cruises From Cape to Boston
Provincetown, July 24.—The submarine V-4 left here early today to cruise to Boston harbor.

The sub is being used to test ordnance supplies after builders' trials which were described by Lieut-Comdr. J. H. Brown as "extremely satisfactory."

The submarine began her "build-up" test yesterday morning and returned to port here last night.

Irish Lassies Must Pay More for Beauty
Dundalk, Ireland, July 24 (INS)—The Irish lass will have to pay more for her "make-up" here as the Dundalk council have decided that a tax should be paid on the color face powder and lipstick.

Irish girls spend more than $5,000,000 a year on "foreign cosmetics."

7 Solomons Switch Babies Again; Plan 'Branding'

Chicago, July 24 (AP)—Seven Mormon Solomons hoped today to lead the Bamberger and Walden babies out of the woods of doubt, as ultra violet-ray machines have been summoned by Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner, to search for hereditary traces in the infant boys and their parents, the William Waldens and the Charles Bambergers, and were ready to appear before Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court to report their findings.

Dr. Kegel revealed yesterday that an ultra violet-ray machine has been devised which would prevent a recurrence of the baby mixup if installed in all hospitals.

The machine can stencil a brand or name on a baby's foot that will be discernible for seven months, the health commissioner said.

$15,000 Rum Haul Made in Fall River
Fall River, July 24 (AP)—Whiskey valued at $15,000 was seized in a freight car here by federal prohibition agents after hijackers already had stolen four or five cases.

The liquor, believed to have been unloaded from a rum-runner in the harbor Sunday night, was billed with the railroad company as "root piece goods." Discovery that the rum on the box car had been broken led to finding of the liquor.

Path Death Quake Took

GROWING HOURLY IN HORROR, the details of the Italian earthquake are only today reflecting the true conditions there, with hundreds of dead and other hundreds injured, thousands of homes in ruins and vast treasure stores of art and antiquity laid waste. FASHIONS HERE TO STAY

New York, July 24.—There will be no fashion revolution this fall, Amos Parrish, leading fashion authority, told owners and executives of 127 department stores and specialty shops at the semi-annual Fashion Merchandising Clinic at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

"Women are interested in the evolution of the present fashions, not in starting fashion revolutions," he said.

"Fashion has pretty well decided where she is going and where she wants to be. She knows exactly what she wants to do about lengths, skirt lengths, waistslines and other details."

"Our fashion analysis proves that fashions for the fall will be individual in moderation."

"Women will still wear the bolero and some of the Gibson Girl silhouette costumes, the Victorian jacket and the Empress Josephine dress, but these will be modified and adapted to fit in with the important fashion themes for fall."

"In other words, the well-dressed woman won't look like the Gibson Girl or the Spanish bullfighter with his holers, or Empress Josephine or Queen Victoria, but she will use these fashion ideas."

Among the models shown was a formal daytime dress of black crepe with top of delicate rose tinted lace, with one-sided collar and normal waistline with adjustable sash ends which tie at the front.

N.E. ARMY BANDER IS ACCUSED BY WOMAN

Capt. Golding Is Suspended Pending a Probe of the Charges in New York

New York, July 24 (AP)—The New York World says today that Capt. George E. Golding, special prohibition agent, who has been in charge of federal under-cover men in New York and New England, has been suspended pending investigation of a complaint by a civilian.

Prohibition officials, says the World, indicated the complaint did not involve Golding's official duties. The complainant is a woman.

Golding first attracted attention five years ago when Commissioner Dornan gave him a roving commission and sent him about the country staging raids independently of local prohibition units.

Before going to Albany he operated in Chicago, Philadelphia and several other cities.

The Albany district, which includes New England, is now in charge of Earl A. Kohler.

Golding is now based at the Hudson, N. Y., brewery, over the heads of Albany enforcement officers.

The said figure in federal investigation of charges that Palmer, Canfield, former prohibition administrator in charge of the New York district, accepted a bribe of $10,000 or $20,000.

Suspend Two Dry Agents for 'Hair-Trigger Methods'

Washington, July 24 (INS)—Warning that the Department of Justice will not tolerate hair-trigger methods of prohibition agents was served by Director Woodcock yesterday.

Ordering immediate suspension of Charles R. McCartney and John W. Burt, who pursued and were said to have fired upon E. G. Dunbar of Baltimore, a city agent last night, Col. Woodcock declared:

"It is not approved that a prohibition agent should be guilty of lack of instruction of the agents, the penalty would have been more severe."

The chase of Dunbar, which placed on a main highway near Baltimore, was reported by the city car, and the agents insisted upon conducting a search of the vehicle, but found no liquor. They then allowed him to go free. Dunbar told his friends about James said.

"James was interviewed at the Grand Hotel, one of the best-known establishments, which, because of its comparative modern construction, escaped serious damage."

"We were in bed and asleep when the first violent quake came a few minutes after 1 o'clock," he said.

Washington, July 24 (INS)—Al though only a brief report had been received today from the Coast Guard station at Woods Hole, Mass., announcing capture of the yacht Marge and wounding of two members of its crew, Coast Guard headquarters indicated the guardsmen would be fully supported in their action.

Pending a further inquiry, the statement of Comdr. P. A. Nichols of Woods Hole that the yacht was warned before being fired on with machine guns was accepted, despite the claim of the wounded men that they were picked up by a motor launch which was forfeited, the record showed. It also is claimed the yacht had been picked up by a motor launch which was forfeited, the record showed. 2 ESCAPE WHILE GUARD SLEEPS
Springfield, July 24.—Cyril H. Young, of Marginal st., East Boston, a United States immigration officer, reported to police here today that two fugitives he was taking to Boston for deportation, had escaped.

Young, who said he has been in the immigration service 13 months, admitted he fell asleep on the bench only after New York when he awoke outside Springfield his prisoners were gone.

He said passengers told him the two men, who were not handcuffed, had gone to a rear coach and presumably left the train.

Young gave the names of the former convicts as Joseph Slater, 40, and Anthony Wolfen, 38, who were to be deported to Russia. Slater had served a term in the Connecticut State prison, he said.

He told police that on reaching Springfield he had left the train and searched for the missing men, but without success. Neither were a coat or hat.

Elopers, Missing Again, Face Jail

Lawrence, July 24.—Lafayette Fairbrother, itinerant preacher and father of five children, and Angelina, Brian, mother of eight, were sought in New York today after they had eloped from the city for the third time in three months.

As was the case in the two previous elopements the 13 children left behind by the couple are being cared for by the preacher's wife. Fairbrother and the Brian woman face a year's sentence in jail the sentence having been suspended after their second offense.

American Tourists Find Quake 'Exciting Incident'

Naples, July 24 (INS)—A vivid description of how the earthquake which rocked Naples and surrounding territory appeared to an American tourist was given to the Boston Evening Service here today by Webster James of Chattanooga, Tenn.

"What made it bad was that the tremor put out all the lights, and the whole city was in lanky blackness," James declared. "The whole city was in lanky blackness."

"The scale of our campaign activities would seem to lend a good deal of color to these general allegations."

"For instance, the 100,000 signatures claimed by your committee, secured at the going rate of 10 cents each, would aggregate a cost of $10,000. The whole bill posting and poster service in your interest, which in itself is over the cost of $50,000."

"In other words, while it is interesting to have campaign expenditures investigated after a primary election, it is not so interesting to have an investigation made before, rather than after, the election."

"In other words, it would be much more wholesome for the spirit of good government to have the bare door of primary expenditures disclosed and locked while the horse is still in the barn."

"We are giving copies of this letter to the press."

Washington, July 24 (INS)—Although only a brief report had been received today from the Coast Guard station at Woods Hole, Mass., announcing capture of the yacht Marge and wounding of two members of its crew, Coast Guard headquarters indicated the guardsmen would be fully supported in their action.

Pending a further inquiry, the statement of Comdr. P. A. Nichols of Woods Hole that the yacht was warned before being fired on with machine guns was accepted, despite the claim of the wounded men that they were picked up by a motor launch which was forfeited, the record showed. It also is claimed the yacht had been picked up by a motor launch which was forfeited, the record showed.

of stock and received no dividends. She long ago decided it was worthless. She brought her stock to the Evening American and a Boston financial house offered her $38 for each share.

The state investigation into stock sales continues with both the attorney general's office and the Department of Public Utilities active.

Through an error in the earlier editions of the Boston Evening American it was reported that the licenses of four stock salesmen had been revoked by the securities division of the Department of Public Utilities. The four salesmen had asked that their names be taken from the list of registered stock salesmen.

The four who voluntarily retired from stock salesmanship are: Samuel C. Converse, 85 Devonshire st.; Joseph W. Connors, 24 Milk st.; Maurice Freeman, 210 Harold st., Roxbury.

Philip T. Johns, 148 State st.

Attention at the State House today was centered on the continuation of the hearing before the Public Utilities Commission of complaints made by four women investors against Louis K. Dichter, a stock salesman of 45 Maywood st., Watertown.

Dichter, according to the women, sold them $100,000 worth of stock in a Massachusetts company on exaggerated promises of dividends.

Anna C. Rickerson, of New Bedford, purchased $7000 worth of stock in the company through Dichter. The other women are Mrs. Delta Howland, of South Dartmouth, and Ada W. Menagh, of Brock pike, Needham.

The complainants said they made their purchases last May, paying $125 a share, only to learn later the stock was listed at $70. Dichter operated out of a Washington st. brokerage, it was brought out.

Atty.-Gen. Warner has a representative at the hearing of the Dichter case today. Chief Inspector Silas Waite, of the securities division, presented the complaints.

PROBE IN COMPLAINTS

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Sawyer, Police Inspector John Mitchell and private detectives employed by the attorney-general are working on more than 100 complaints of apparent fraud in stock sales received through the Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau, Sawyer announced.

This number represents only those complaints which might be made the basis of prosecution. A majority of the cases called to the attention of the bureau involve legitimate enterprises whose stock sales continue with the department of last October. A great many of the other complaints date several years and involve violation against which the statute of limitation is.

Thomas W. Savage, a New York stock salesman, is still in custody at the Lagrange at police station awaiting the arrival of police from Niagara Falls. He was arrested Wednesday on a fugitive warrant charging him with the larceny of $500 through the sale of worthless securities to Mrs. Clement Hale of Niagara Falls.

The Boston Better Business Bureau made public a report covering its investigation of questionable stock operations during the first six months of 1930. The report, compiled by Kenneth D. Backman, manager of the bureau, contained a vigorous condemnation of the stock operations during the first six months of 1930.

This is the plan, whereby a prospect is offered a share of stock with merchandise as a bait.

14 CASES SETTLED

During the six months the bureau received 638 inquiries as to the value of certain stocks. Of this number 688 were from Metropolitan Boston. Stock in industrial promotions led in the type question, with 174 inquiries.

The bureau found 103 specific complaints against various types of financial transactions. After an investigation, the bureau turned over 41 complaints and additional information to the Department of Public Utilities. They were subsequently referred to police and prosecuting attorneys.

In 34 complaints, adjustments involving the refund of money, delivery of stock certificates or other satisfactory arrangements were effected.

The bureau compiled a 219-page report on stock merchandising which has proved of great value in the campaign against stock swindlers and blue sky promoters being carried on by the Evening American in co-operation with the Better Business Bureau and federal, state and county authorities.

Louis Jeselsch lives at 72 Southmore rd., Brighton, and is a wealthy retired tobacco merchant. While visiting at Atlantic City with his wife, he was swindled out of $48,000 by race track confidence men, one of whom posed as a hotel owner.

Jeselsch returned to Boston and converted securities into cash which he gave one of the men to bet for him on "inside information."

Jeselsch, who is 70, never saw his money again.

Last week he was called to New York to look over the five men being held by police of that city.

NOBILITY TO WED BUTLER

Washington, July 24.—Miss Gytha Stourton, great-granddaughter of the 14th Duke of Norfolk and a favorite of diplomatic circles, is on her way to her home in England to obtain her family's consent, if not approval, to a marriage with an Italian butler.

The butler is Fioravanti De'Agnes, major domo of the old British embassy here and long in the employ of Sir Esmé Howard, Miss Stourton's cousin.

The romance which is flouting the most cherished of nobility's conventions blossomed in the embassy after Miss Stourton came here from England in 1924 to serve as social secretary to Lady Isabella, Sir Esmé's wife.

One of the first persons she saw in the embassy was Fioravanti, the butler.

Though only 30 years old, he had been long in service of the Howard family.

Gytha was 22 when she came to Washington. She became friendly with Fioravanti, and he assisted her with the difficult business of seating many guests at the formal affairs.

A year ago the friendship ripened into more affectionate regard.

Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 39

THE JASON RUSSELL HOUSE, ARLINGTON

Arlington, known as Menotomy, on the road to Lexington, was the scene of a skirmish at the opening of the Revolution. This house of Jason Russell has had blood stains upon its floor and across its door sills. Here Jason Russell was killed with eleven others, two being English.

The house was built in 1680, and was used as a tavern by Russell, who was lame. He was wanted to flee the British by Ammi Cutter, but barricaded his store instead. Danvers and Salem minute men were attacked by a flocking group from the rear while they were watching the road for Percy's men in retreat from Lexington.

SHELTER IN DWELLING

It has been described:

"They made a small breast-work of racks, shingles and such movable as they could readily attain. From behind this cover, the patriots fired on Percy's men, but they had not taken into account the flanking guard moving across the fields parallel with the main body. Hemmed in between these two columns, the minute men sought shelter within the dwelling."

Russell had conducted his wife and children to a high hill and was returning, when he was discovered and pursued into the house with the others.

STAINS REMAINED

He was first shot and then bayoneted. The bloody stains remained until recently upon the floor, where he with 10 others perished. Several Americans retreated into the cellar and as they were well armed, the British dared not follow them, but discharged several volleys into the entrance.

Russell's old store was entered by the regulars who, after helping themselves to the barrels left all the spoils of war, waste what remained. Right in front of the store a soldier was mortally wounded. A shaft of granite in the burying ground at Arlington marks the grave of the fallen. It is the common grave of Jason Russell and the others slain by the British.

The Danvers Minutemen came from South Danvers, new Peabody, in four hours, running most of the distance.

Arlington is reached by electric cars from Boston and is located on Route No. 2 on the road to Lexington and Concord.

BOY DROWNS IN HACKS MOTHER OF 3 TO DEATH

Efforts by friends and police officers to revive John Smith, 11, of Minden st., Roxbury, victim of drowning in Everett Pond, Jamaicaaway, failed after several hours today.

The boy had been swimming with John Beverly, eight, also of Minden st., when he suddenly collapsed.

John Kilday, a city park employee, dove in the pond and brought the boy ashore.

Patrolmen William R. Smith and Edward T. Creighton ran to the scene and used the prone method of resuscitation without avail. Apparatus from two fire stations were used for more than two hours before the boy was pronounced dead.

More School Room Needed

A special meeting of the Waltham school committee will be held next Monday evening to formulate plans for relieving congestion in the schools anticipated next September.

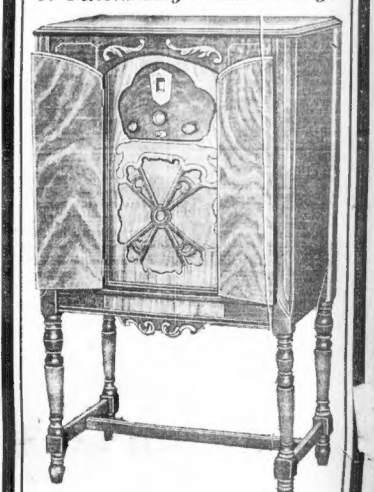

Hartford, Ct., July 24 (AP)—Mrs. Ida Diamond, 27, was hacked to death in her home today while her three little children slept in an adjoining room.

Her husband, Nathan Diamond, 28, who told police he had found his wife's body in a bathroom, was held after being questioned for several hours by detectives.

The authorities learned of the slaying at 2 a. m., 20 minutes after the hour fixed by police as the probable time of the crime when a patrolman heard the screams of the slain woman's relatives who had been called to the house by Diamond.

The Diamonds, police said, had been unhappy almost from the day they were married six years ago.

RESCUE 21 U. S. MISSIONARIES IN CHINA

Foohow, China, July 24 (AP)—Twenty-one American and 28 British missionaries, who had been marooned in the Chinese war zone, were rescued and brought here last night by John J. Moore of the American consulate and British Consul Martin.

It is understood that 15 Americans remain in the same zone, but they probably will be brought out. Two others whose rescue was expected are still being held, however. They are Miss E. J. Harrison and Miss Edith Nettleton, English missionaries, who were captured three weeks ago by bandits.

The missionaries were held about 100 miles up the Min river from Foohow and the consuls made the trip by boat after being promised safe conduct through the battle lines of both the rebel troops and the government forces.

Bay State Missionaries Among War Refugees

(By Associated Press)
Officials at Boston headquarters of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions said today a group of their workers left the mission station at Shanghai northwest of Yangtze for Foohow about June 7, when activities of Chinese warring factions made further missionary work impossible. Whether any of the members of this party were in a group of British and American missionary workers in the Jia river valley, who were reported in a dispatch from Shanghai to have been taken to safety aboard a launch, was not known here.

In the group were Mrs. George W. Shepard and four young children, of St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. Edward L. Bliss, Newburyport, Mass.; and Rev. and Mrs. Charles R. Stone and four children of Boston. Rev. Edmund D. Kellogg of Cambridge was also thought to be a member of the party.

Dr. Walter H. Judd of Rising City, Neb., and Dr. Edward L. Bliss of Newburyport, remained at work in Shanghai at that time.

Jean Aubert Dances for Charity; Bar Pay

Geneva, July 24 (AP)—Jean Aubert, wife of Nelson Merritt of Chicago, appeared in a benefit for charity here last night after her husband had obtained a court decision yesterday which caused her to abandon plans for a paid performance.

The French actress who married the Chicago millionaire was loudly cheered as she sang and danced. The court here declined to grant Miss Aubert's petition for a paid performance, saying it had no jurisdiction.

St. Paul, Minn., July 24 (AP)—An investigation by President Hoover's office of the action of U. S. customs agents at St. Paul, who recently fined Maj.-Gen. J. A. McBrien of Canada $600 for alleged failure of report arrival by plane in the United States has been promised a letter from George Alexander, secretary to the President.

RED PLANE 86 HOURS IN AIR

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 24 (AP)—Despite showers early today and low hanging clouds, the red endurance plane, piloted by Louis Reichers and Robert Black was still in the air.

At 10 a. m. today she had passed 86 hours in the air, but will have to stay up 470 hours more to break the record already established by the Hunter brothers in Chicago on July Fourth.

At 9:30 a. m. today the plane took 50 gallons of gasoline, and ten of oil. Breakfast, the morning newspapers and letters were also sent up by the refueling plane to the red Sikorski monoplane.

John S. Donaldson and Philip Watson, pilots of the refueling plane, said the boys and the plane seemed to be "doing fine."

A slice of cake ...
a lollypop ... and ice cream from
FRO-JOY'S 2-flavor pint package
... that's celebrating!

Both CHARLOTTE DENNY and MATTIE WILLIAM F. BOWDY had no difficulty at all in getting rid of their mares on that afternoon when they played as being Fro-Joy ice cream vendors. Every year at Smith's Point, Manchester, there is a performance of some musical children's play directed by MRS. GEORGE P. DENNY of Glenview St., Boston, for the benefit of the Children's Hospital. And neither CHARLOTTE nor WILLIAM can quite decide whether they would rather be members of the cast or sell Fro-Joy Ice Cream afterwards.

These are the very words of Charlotte Denny, mistress of refreshments for the Children's Hospital plays, at Smith's Point, Manchester. "After 'Robin Hood' and the 'Pied Piper'—Fro-Joy was very popular. Acting is hot work and everyone was glad to cool off with Fro-Joy."

FOR those little dynamos of human energy who adore ice cream, there's none purer or more deliciously flavored than that found in Fro-Joy's 2-flavor combinations.

Made only of fine country cream, fresh fruits and top-notch flavorings, its creamy-cool smoothness is loaded with vital nourishment. You can be sure that this wholesomeness is guarded to the moment it reaches your table. For we wrap the package three times and seal it double-fast.

To grown-ups, the exquisite flavor blends, and the delightful color harmonies, appearing new each week in this resourceful package, are a constant source of delight.

Constant novelty of combinations to stir the most experienced palate. An entirely different dessert every time! And convenience! Ready when you want to serve it. And so easy to get!

CLAIM HULTMAN IN CONTEMPT IN NEW SHIRT

now preparing his report for Judge Wall.

Police Commissioner Hultman was taking the complaints of some of the 24 transferred policemen in Division 4 quite calmly today as he hurried about to conferences about traffic problems, tear gas bombs and the things that make up a commissioner's daily routine.

Asked by a Boston American reporter if he expected a delegation from the 24 officers to call on him today and complain about their transfer, Hultman said he didn't look for any such get-together session.

"I think it would be a very foolish thing for them to do," he said. "Just what he meant by that was left to the man themselves to figure out."

"If they are grumbling and they want to grumble to me, they can come to my office," the commissioner ended his brief interview. "I like grumblers, especially when they come to my office."

The commissioner was reported today to be turning his attention to the 15. Back Bay, for the next shakeup.

The Back Bay station, it was reported at police headquarters, is the next on a list scheduled for a run-and-kill, shakeup, however, of long-continued liquor nuisances.

Others will follow, as the new commissioner, taking cognizance of police oversight of actual neglect of duty, moves to correct what he firmly believes to be a deleterious situation.

UNDECEASED ON CHARGES
"Do you intend to make further transfers?" the commissioner was asked.

"I don't care to commit myself just now on what I may do," he replied. "I will say, though, that from time to time as emergencies arise, I'll take care of these situations."

"All I care to say is that I may make changes from time to time. If I think they should be made for the improvement of the service."

"Do you consider that you have any more problems such as the Station 4 case, requiring immediate attention?"

"I can't say that I have. I don't know whether I have or not. You see, last night's order was more of a disciplinary matter than anything else. I may make changes in the future for reasons independent of that, given last night, I really don't know at all."

Whatever action is taken by the transferred men will gain by it. The commissioner went deep into Division 4 conditions during the men's hearing on petition for an injunction to bar police from David J. "Beano" Breen's building in Tremont east, and he is adamant in the position taken in his order for transfer.

Meanwhile, several of the 28 patrolmen and six sergeants transferred from Lagoon 4, called at an indignation meeting with the idea in mind of sending a committee to the commissioner to protest his action.

Their resentment was aimed particularly at the wording of the Hultman general order, which declared liquor nuisances have existed for several years in Division 4.

and "therefore, for the good of the service, the transfers are made."

The order conveys the information that they are gratters, some of the men feel. The indignation meeting will be held sometime today and a committee may be named to ask Commissioner Hultman for an opportunity to be heard on the protest.

U. S. DIPLOMATS MUST PAY OWN WINE BILLS

Washington, July 24 (AP).—Bubbling champagnes and choice wines at governmental expense are forbidden luxuries in American embassies and consulates abroad under an executive order just signed by President Hoover.

The order cites in detail regulations governing the disbursement by nearly all American diplomatic and consular missions abroad of allowances of $2,000 recently voted by Congress for official entertaining.

In addition to liquors, three other items are taboo under the order, they include hire and repair of automobiles, printing and engraving expenses and club dues.

The order states that "express provisions of the law" prevent governmental funds being used for these purposes.

The item of serving liquors is generally considered by foreign service officers stationed abroad to be about the heaviest of any for which they have been forced to pay out of their own pockets.

At the homes of many foreign service officers liquors are served, but under the present ruling these must be paid for by the host, no matter what the occasion.

Newton Woman Awarded Federation Art Prize

By NANCY BREWSTER

Mrs. Frank Stewart of Newton, former art chairman in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was one of those receiving prizes for the best work in arranging and routing the 35 exhibits of art of the parent organization, according to an announcement made at headquarters.

Others were Mrs. W. F. Schluess, Washington; Mrs. J. E. Johns Kansas; Mrs. John Hill, Kentucky. The prizes were won on the water color paintings and pottery made in the studios and colleges of art throughout the country, and certainly proved of great stimulation to the clubwomen of the federation.

Mrs. Howard Green, chairman of the division of art and one of the most active executives of the General Federation has had in this field, announced also that 35 clubs in New Jersey subscribed a penny a member for the purchase of pictures and so took the first prize in that category. Kansas took second prize.

For the most constructive art work done in the states eight prizes were awarded as follows: Illinois, Wisconsin, Montana, Mississippi, Panama, (Cristobal), Indiana, North Carolina and Texas.

Massachusetts took with pride to Mrs. Stewart for her upholding of the State president.

The best individual club reports was made by Mrs. A. H. Favot of Arizona, the best constructive art work among juniors was completed by Mrs. Jessie Hooley, Kentucky. New England shared an honor when it was announced that the best cover design for General Federation News was submitted by Mrs. T. Wise of Rhode Island.

Winthrop Catholic Woman's Club Plans Bridge Next Week

A club fund will be brought into existence with the proceeds of a bridge and whist which the Winthrop Catholic Woman's Club will conduct next Wednesday evening at the home of the newly-elected president, Mrs. Bernard J. McGinnis, at 55 Sargent st., Winthrop.

Part of this fund will go to defray the cost of the clubroom expenses in Winthrop's new Community Hospital, and are preparing for the financial burden at this early date. Mrs. Peter E. Connolly, newly-elected club president, is assisting Mrs. McGinnis as many members of the club.

Scituate Women's Bridge Party Aids Their Club Fund

Scituate clubwomen never say "die" even in the warm weather months, and I find that on their schedule a bridge party held at the clubhouse, brought considerable receipts for the club fund. Mrs. Ellen Eren had charge of the affair.

Incidentally, many people are availing themselves of the opportunity to attend the open house activities extended by the club members on Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons during the month. Club members are on hand to extend the official sign of hospitality and welcome to visitors.

Mrs. W. H. Bartlett New Head of Monday Club of Weymouth

Mrs. Wilfred H. Bartlett is the new president of the Monday Club of Weymouth, one of Mrs. George E. Gomey's second district clubs. Mrs. Bartlett has been a most efficient chairman of hospitality and other committees and her appointment will serve her well to lead from the most powerful of South Shore clubs.

These days find Mrs. Bartlett and her board steadily at work preparing the year book that the more than 200 members will be acquainted with the year's schedule. Mrs. Parker Tursan, retired president, is to serve as junior adviser, Mrs. Gomey informs me.

Cool Fashions Cleverly Veil Pattern

By ANN ARDEN

THIS IS a feminine era with sheer materials and many dainty dressing devices in high vogue. Thus when smart, cool and slenderizing effects are the object, one doesn't, indeed, have far to look.

NAVY GEORGETTE is cool fashion and a happy find in a frock as carefully detailed as one seen recently. Its sheers permit a pattern and the smart costume pictured has its pattern cleverly veiled.

THE UNDER slip is of vivid coloring—red, rose, eggshell—and geometric design; this is visible through the sheer skirt, and emerges as the elevated, tightly high-necked blouse. The skirt ruffle has attached pleats confining its fulness. The georgette jacket has bolero lines, its fronts tied in bow ends. The wide collar is tucked and adjustable.

THE BEREET of white velvet is cleverly draped and tied in dashing bow behind the right ear. The pull-on white doekin gloves have perforated backs.

THE BRAG in blue, of fine silk, a new design with delicate bands of the silk. Blue bracelet is worn, and blue leather purse. A sheer ensemble in which to feel coolly confident of being well dressed.

HATS SEEM to be as particular about the hours they keep as frocks are this summer. Each hat has its place in the picture and sticks to it. Of course there are exceptions to this when a type of hat is versatile enough to serve more than one occasion, but in the whole you will find that there is a chic demarcation between hat lunch and hats that dine toward night.

AT FRENCH races and at fashionable La Touque, accessories seem to be divided into two color camps. On one side is the legitimate and light accessories accentuating the dark costume. And on the other side are the dark accessories with light costumes. Both are strikingly effective. Black accessories, for instance, were quite startling with grayish frock seen at Longchamps. On the other hand, one gets a similar reaction of surprise from white accents on a dark sports frock at La Touque.

Milady's Jewel Styles More Ornamental

Paris, July 24.—From a cursory survey of the new items displayed in the leading shops, we are led to report that feminine trappings are more ornamental than ever, and even more pleased to be able to tell you that understating necessities have become ornamental and intriguing. Watches have decided to abandon the wrist and are so attaching themselves to hands, belt and even to the coat lapel at a convenient angle.

The new jewelry is masculine and more involved. Mauboussin is featuring wide flat necklaces of tiny real diamonds set with large rubies. A favorite item of costume jewelry is a low necklace at the collar line made of mirror glass in oblong plaques. Colored chimes of glass motifs used with twisted small beads are replacing wood and metal beads. Sets of necklace, earrings and brooch and fitted belt are shown in real silver.

HUB FANS WILL HONOR "PETER PAN" OF BASEBALL

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.
Atlantic City, N. J., July 23.—It appears from the public prints that in some sections of the country, John Law is endeavoring to abate the sudden craze of free-sitting that has unaccountably seized upon the youth of the land, and which all goes back to a gent who is now in Atlantic City.

The gent is our old friend Shipwreck Kelly, the flagpole artist, at this writing, perched on the peak of a tall stick on the boardwalk, peering out across the heaving bottom of the ocean.

I am told that old Shipwreck has been up there most of the summer, and will remain indefinitely. He is taking none the worse of it, at that, because an occasional breath of breeze eddies about his roost. In the meantime, thousands of small boys have been imitating him to the extent of perching themselves in trees and attempting to establish tree-sitting endurance records.

Lacking the experience of old Shipwreck, these youthful tree-sitters have become a public nuisance in some sections, because they tumble out of the trees onto the noggin of pedestrian.

So John Law is commencing to take a hand, which I hold is a grave mistake. In proper proportion, and with due reference to hygiene, and et cetera, I hold that this tree-sitting is excellent training for youngsters. It was to me a hopeful sign that the future might produce a generation of far bank dealers the equal of the old timers.

FARO DEALERS GONE

The gradual passing of the faro bank dealer has been one of the regrettable phases of our modern civilization. It is true that science has no definite record of the death of an old faro bank dealer, but it is pretty well established that they dry up and blow away.

Thus there are now in this country only a few survivors of the old time type, such as Chew Tobacco Joe, Faro Bank Jack, and one or two others whose names escape me. You find them, in season, at Miami, across the river from Looeyville, along the Jersey coast, and wherever else the tiger prowls.

For many years their number has been quite adequate, but recently some of our faro bank enthusiasts have been wondering what is to become of the ancient institution when these few disappear.

The consensus is unless a new crop of dealers is developed the game will vanish entirely, and thus many citizens will find themselves deprived of a healthful amusement.

Several attempts have been made at late years to mold faro bank dealers of aspiring young men, notably Mr. Johnny Irwin, whose untiring efforts in behalf of the pastime have kept it going in the face of many obstacles, but generally admitted that the youngsters are not in the same class with the old type.

DID SOMEONE SAY SOMETHING? Here is a picture of Rabbit Maranville showing him ready to protest any decision he doesn't think right.

WAITING FOR A GOOD ONE. The Rabbit is wise enough to let enemy pitchers work hard. Here he is, waiting for a good one to swing at.

TAKING 'EM EASY. Rabbit, one of the greatest shortstops in the game, can grab off anything that comes his way, without an effort.

Fans Will Pay Tribute to Maranville Saturday

Manager Johnny Kling of the Boston Doves walked into the old Walpole at grounds one afternoon in the fall of 1912 to discover a stranger, in uniform, sitting on the bench.

The pilot looked him over. He didn't see much for the newcomer wasn't more than five feet, four inches tall and didn't appear to weigh more than 120 pounds.

"Who's the new mascot?" he finally inquired of one of his broken down veterans, pointing to the middle.

"He's not a mascot," replied the b. & w. "he's Walter Maranville, a new shortstop from the New Bedford club of the New England League."

"New shortstop," came back Kling. "The scout who thinks that a kid of his size is a big league ball player ought to be fired. That gnat's a chance. I'll use him tomorrow and see how he gets on."

He did use him the next day, as he promised, thus introducing the "big show" to the greatest snort-storm from that moment to this.

The Rabbit started off by proving a critic wrong and has been proving them wrong ever since.

Amateur Boxing Best Safeguard for Ring Came

YOUNGSTERS GIVE ACTION TO MEET THE FRONTIER

By JACK CONWAY

Amateur boxing is the salvation of the ring game if it is properly conducted. It furnishes action and the kind of keen competition which is demanded by the fans.

Thousands of people attend amateur boxing shows who never journey to the ringside when the pros are doing their fight.

Journey to a New England or a national boxing championship meeting at the Arena and you will find the best people in the community gathered around the ringside.

Bankers, lawyers, doctors, big business men rub elbows with newsmen and bootblacks. They are all eager to see the big punches fly. Amateur boxing, of course, has its evils, but not all of the shortcomings can be charged up to the boys who furnish the thrills. You get undisciplined action at a properly conducted amateur show. Every boy who steps into the ring has an idea he is going to develop into a Dempsey, Sharkey, Tunney or Schmeling.

You find hundreds of these amateur boys training each day at the various gyms. The horny hand of commercialism has crept into the amateur boxing game during the past few years. This has put the sport in great danger. It is subjected to some of the same evil influences that have been so rampant in the conduct of professional boxing.

Those men who have the real interest of amateur boxing at heart are fighting against these evil influences. They are trying to keep the amateur game really pure. They are getting severe opposition, but they feel they will win out. I shall have more to say later in regard to some of the evils in amateur boxing.

EAGER TO GAIN FAME

I asked Jim Toland, who operates a gym on Friend st., what was the big urge with the amateurs. "They read about the pro champions getting $100,000 and up for their services," answered Jim, "and they also want to cash in on their fighting ability."

"I notice that whenever there is a big fight that it tends to steam up the amateurs. They come flocking into the gym and get down to work. 'What these boys lack in ability they make up for by their earnestness. They are in there to prove they possess the necessary ability to climb the heights that lead to fame and glory in the ring.'"

Amateur boxing has always been firmly established in New England. Twenty years ago the greatest amateur boxing shows in the country were held in Boston. It was at the U. S. Amateur boxing championships in 1924 that Jim Walsh took his first start as a boxer. The skillful amateur was the attraction of Eddie Kevin. The latter took over the management of the club and placed him in the world's bantamweight championship.

Walsh is today one of the most capable boxing referees in Massachusetts. He is unimpeachable and shows no signs of the numerous hard battles in which he has been engaged. One of the chief reasons for Walsh's success was the fact that he remained in the ranks of the amateurs until he had mastered the fundamentals of boxing. Nowadays many of the promising boys are rushed into the pro ranks before they are properly schooled in boxing. They are pitted against experienced opponents and ruined as boxing prospects.

When Walsh was a star in the amateurs, the boys did not sweep into action as frequently as they do off each year. They seldom fought more than one tournament a month. This gave them plenty of time to rest and recuperate and also an opportunity to improve their boxing.

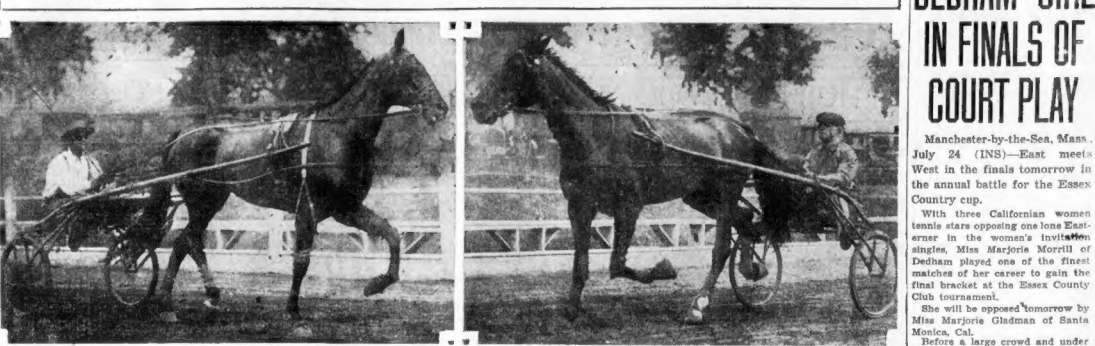

BOX TOO OPEN

One of the reasons why so many promising youngsters are so often off each year is because they box too frequently. They often go on fighting when they are not fit. Injury received in a previous bout, they are only able to fight a few rounds every three or four weeks. There would be less danger of injury if the boys were to box only once a month. They would also be able to spend more time in the gym where they could be coached by a competent instructor.

The problem of making weight is also one for the amateurs. Most of them are growing boys. They imitate their victors and erect their own careers when they make the weight too frequently. I believe that amateur boxers should receive adequate encouragement. They should be trained properly, not over-matched and kept out of the pro ranks until they have had sufficient seasoning. I believe the amateur referee could help the boys a great deal by providing them with adequate first quarters and also furnishing competent instructors.

BIG MEET AT SPEEDWAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The Metropolitan Driving Club, with home and track at the Charles River Speedway, is making final preparation for the coming race meet of the Annual League of Amateur Driving Clubs at the Speedway track next week on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The choice of trotters and pacers of the league members from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and the New England States will be the main attraction. More than 200 entries have been received by the club.

Each of the three days of racing will find nine events staged, starting at 1:30 o'clock. Two special races will be run for clubs with money prizes to encourage the breeding of colts.

The prospect of taking part in a set Olympic games has always made a strong appeal to the youngsters. It brings out large entry lists and always furnishes hot action. In 1924 that Fido LaBarba and Jackie Fields played in Boston amateur boxing championships. I find that amateurs who have been in the pro ranks for a long time have been handled by men who know the boxing game thoroughly. They brought the youngsters along carefully and did not send them into the pro ranks for the big money in the pro ranks until their fighting was strong enough.

GOOD GOLF

U. S. OFFICERS HALT CARNAGE

Montreal, July 24 (US)—Prime Minister's plan for a farewell fight in a Montreal ring last night before returning to Italy was raised in Buffalo, when U. S. customs officers refused to allow him to cross the border.

The officers declared that the huge Italian boxer must make his exit via Ellis Island. Several nights ago, after he had flattened "Dag" Wright in an Omaha ring, federal authorities notified Prime that his six month stay in the United States was up.

His attorney's request for a stay turned down in Washington by the department of labor, Canada decided that American immigration restrictions would not interfere with his keeping the Canadian appetite.

Some 20,000 fight fans who had purchased tickets for the bout were disappointed at the decision. Mrs. L. A. Harper, well known Canadian actress and sister of the late actress Mary Green, who had been eliminated in the third round, as was Miss Ethel Burkhardt of San Francisco by Miss Crulshank in the fourth round, 6-3, 5-2, 6-2.

Hyde Park jumped into the win column in the Hub 7mi league second half race last evening on its home park where it set down the St. Albans nine of South Boston, 5 to 1.

Ball Hits Robin as Hole-in-One Is Made

On Wednesday afternoon, while playing in a foursome at the Selkirk Golf Club, Jerome F. Murphy hit a "birdie" on the 19th hole.

His ten, which carried about 200 yards, and his second, while being labelled "for the green," came in contact with a beautiful red-breasted robin about 10 feet above the fairway. Mr. Murphy's companions were so surprised that they called him a "birdie" on this hole, which was witnessed by this unusual incident.

Witnesses of this unusual incident were John Brennan of Genoa, Al Ricci, former Boston College star, featured again with his heavy hitting.

Eyebright Victor in Feature Trot

Worcester, July 24—Three events were decided at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon over a track that was in good running condition after the heavy rain of Tuesday. The feature stake for two-year-olds was won by Eyebright, with his stable companion, Calumet Seaforth, gaining second honors.

Both colts are owned by the Worcester sportsman, Joseph J. Roberts.

Lone Boy, after a hard battle with Ariel Peters and Earl Wilkes, annexed first money in the 2:20 race, the above mentioned finishing as named.

Net Worth was much the best in the 2:15, with a third mile race. The above mentioned finishing as named.

Victory by the Easterner and Fur Weistner followed in the wake of a series of upsets in the tournament, which started in the early rounds, when Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco, the Wightman cup player, was defeated by Virginia Hillery of Philadelphia, who in turn was defeated by Miss Weist.

Then Miss Sarah Fairley, the Boston girl wonder player, was eliminated by Miss Gladman in the quarter finals, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2. Miss Morrill defeated Miss Mianne in the quarter finals, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

ONLY V PLAY FOR GOFFITE

By BILL GRIMES

In order to stimulate interest in the fifth annual New England amateur championship, which will be held at the Portland, Me., Country Club, August 4, 5, 6 and 7, Secretary Raynor M. Gardiner has prepared a very attractive folder.

The New England Golf Association has limited the entry to 110, each of the six states being allotted the following number of contestants: Massachusetts, 35; New Hampshire, 20; Maine, 20; Connecticut, 15; Rhode Island, 10; and Vermont, 5.

Aside from accuracy, every state will send its full quota to Portland. A most of the golfers in Vermont are summer residents, and the Green Mountain State has never played any great interest in New England amateur championships, although George McKee who hails from Montpelier, was the medalist two years ago.

The Portland Country Club will prove an ideal site for the New England amateur, as it has some of the best golf courses in the state. Although there are a few testing holes, the majority should prove easy for the golfers.

Most of the par four holes measure in the 300's, a drive and a pitch in many cases. There is one hole, however, the sixth, which will make the boys step to better par. This hole is 475 yards and a dog and to the best of any reliable authorities knowledge, it has never been played in two shots. The fact that there are four water holes at Portland, calls for some caution and this is especially true of the short seventh, which requires a 190 shot over water to an island green.

Rain May Slow Up Portland Course

During the recent N. E. P. G. O. amateur tour tournament, the Portland Country Club links were very dry, which accounted to some extent, for the low scoring. But, if the weather man turns loose some rain just prior to the New England, the entrants will have trouble winning a decision over Old Man Par.

Many of the leading Bay State golfers have already entered the New England, Freddie Wright, the division winner of the Massachusetts amateur title, has sent in his entry but it is doubtful if he will participate, for he is now planning to play in the Canadian open which will be held in the Portland classic.

Entries Should Be Sent in at Once

Entries should be mailed to the secretary of the various state associations or to Raynor M. Gardiner, 16-A Ashburton Pl., Boston. As each state association will determine its own quota will be determined, it is advisable for all 30 and under players who are desirous of playing in this championship to send in their entries. If the quota is filled, it is possible that nine and 10 stroke handicap players will be allowed to participate.

E. H. Moody, of the Portland Country Club, is in charge of the tournament committee, and has arranged for contestants at the Eastman, Fairmount and Lafayette hotels in Portland. But players should make definite reservations at the earliest moment. For it is the height of the season and the demand is heavy for rooms.

After the qualifying rounds, the Portland Country Club will be the site of all competitors at a testimonial dinner at one of the famous seaside resorts.

Two of the most popular open medal play tournaments of the season are on the M. G. A. list for this week. The Highland Country Club open starts today and while up tomorrow, while Rockport swings into action tomorrow and will entertain through Saturday.

Emory Stratton and Bob Hutchings put together a better ball of 70 yesterday afternoon during the Tedesco Country Club four ball in which they were out in 24 strokes. They were out in 24 strokes, and will return at the same pace, until Stratton "sagged" in the 5th hole.

DAVIS CUP DEFENDER

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor, Boston American:
Do stop these tree squatters! Many children in the back yard have caught this bug. They have given up playing on the bare ground and have gone up a tree. I can hear them talking about the stunt through my open window in the attic.
I stand in dread of their falling and breaking one or more of their limbs. Help mothers by showing in your popular paper that children should play on the ground and not become birds or monkeys on a maple tree.
AN ANXIOUS MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN.

Blames Hoover for Ills of Business World

Editor Boston American:

Now that Mayor Curley has joined with Calvin Coolidge in the back-patting of President Hoover, such humble fellows as myself should probably grieve or make oblation.

But my oblation overflows. I cannot bring myself to accept the principle that the American citizen should refrain from criticism of the President.

They tell us that criticism of the President for such heinous unpardonable sins as the economic condition is certainly unpardonable.

But the economic condition is certainly unpardonable. It is the economic condition which has caused the depression.

He Says Tinkham Might Just as Well Quit Now

Editor Boston American:

Bishop James Cannon, Jr. has just married, according to your paper. Hands off the bishop now, Representative Tinkham! Lay down your arms!

His second wife is a great protectress, a wife, dignified, calm, argumentative type of woman.

You have two to face now. Before this you had only one antagonist to face. Yes, throw up the sponge! You might just as as try to the mite of the bishop. Then has conquered. Cripple hands. Bury the hatchet.

Old and Infirm Will Miss Traffic Signal Mixup

Editor Boston American:

On for the touch of the vanishing hand of the traffic officer. It is the human touch that we miss on Boston streets. The hand that commanded and gave aid in the aged, the infirm and blind.

It is now the mechanical touch. It is mechanical aid. These new traffic signals have no mercy, they have no feelings, they don't care what happens. They go in their machine-like way and we dread them because there is no

OFFICIALS BLAME $40,000 WALTHAM BLAZE ON LONE FIREBIG

FIREMEN OF 5 TOWNS AND FIGHT

Two Buildings of Foundry Are Destroyed; Wide Area Menaced by Flying Brands

Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed the two buildings of the unoccupied Davis & Farnum iron foundry in Waltham, today, with a loss estimated at $40,000.

Fire Chief George L. Johnson declared the fire was not. He believed the same firebug was responsible for this and four other recent fires in unoccupied buildings here in Waltham and one in Watertown.

The state fire marshal is conducting an investigation in connection with Chief Johnson and the police.

A general alarm, sounded soon after the fire was discovered, by John F. Dinkin, the watchman, called out from Newton, Lexington, Arlington, Belmont and Watertown.

The flames raged for three hours before they were under control. The fire was discovered by John F. Dinkin, the watchman, called out from Newton, Lexington, Arlington, Belmont and Watertown.

The main building, one and a half stories of frame construction, was the first prey of the flames, followed soon afterward by a nearby smaller structure.

Two 25-ton electric cranes were in the larger building. The fire is believed to have started in the first floor or basement, and before firemen reached the scene, the flames were breaking through the roof.

Boiling embers were flying over nearby houses, causing Chief Johnson to send for outside help immediately.

2 Hurt as Auto Upsets in Crash

A crash between two autos on East Newton at St. Harrison ave., last night sent Edward Mcintosh, 24, of Talbot ave., Dorchester, to the City Hospital in a dying condition and caused serious injuries to his companion, Frank Mcintosh, 19, of Edna st., Dorchester.

The car, driven by Edward J. Berry, overturned after colliding with a machine driven by Jeremiah G. Gibson of Dorchester. The drivers escaped unhurt. Mcintosh was found to have a fractured skull and a fractured spine and his name was placed on the donor list. Mcintosh has injuries to his left side, face and legs.

Failure of a North Shore society woman to appear as a witness today in the case of Harold Ross of Broad st., Lynn, superintendent of the Lynn General Electric Co., arrested last June for drunken driving, caused Judge O'Brien in Lynn district court to continue the case until September 24. The woman, a resident of Swampscott, is now in Tarnmouth, Nova Scotia.

A parked automobile was wrecked and a general traffic tangle was caused today when two horses attached to a Boston Park department wagon became frightened and raced wildly along Commonwealth ave. The wrecked automobile was owned by William F. Doelger.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as its taste. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

Where the Fire Fiend Plied His Flaming Brand

WARPED AND BLACKENED RUINS lean against the horizon where flames early today swept the foundry building of the Davis & Farnum plant in Waltham. Officials blame the blaze on the firebug who set four other recent fires in Waltham and one in Watertown. The loss in this latest blaze was $10,000 and apparatus from five other towns aided Waltham firemen in battling it. (Staff photo.)

FAIR WEATHER RULES IN HUB

Continued fair weather with fair to cool temperature is promised by the weather man in his official prediction made at 8 a. m. today.

It is slightly warmer today than yesterday, but no heat wave is expected. The temperature at 10 a. m. is 77 as compared with 74 for yesterday at the same hour.

The heat wave throughout the country seems to have broken to a great extent. Lower temperatures and normal humidity are the rule, and the country's sweltering conditions will probably have relief for a time at least.

The unofficial forecast for today and tomorrow is: Fair today and probably Friday, not much change in temperature; moderate south to west winds.

SHOE MEN AND FARM BUREAU TO CONFER

Manufacturers at Conference Discuss Methods of Bettering Conditions

A number of suggestions to improve conditions in the shoe business were offered at the conference of shoe manufacturers and others with the State Industrial Commission at the State House yesterday.

Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, State commissioner of agriculture and a member of the commission, advised the appointment of a group of shoe manufacturers to discuss with the Federation of Farm Bureaus mutual problems when the farmers group holds its annual convention in this city next December.

Among the speakers at the conference, which developed largely into a general discussion of what use may be made of the 20 per cent tariff placed on shoes in this year's tariff measure were Congressman William F. Conner, Jr., of Lynn, Thomas F. Anderson, secretary of the Shoe and Leather Association and Chairman Bradbury F. Cushing of the commission.

Congressman Conner informed the manufacturers that he would use Proctor showworkers to temporarily force foreign competition and "get out and unlearn Missouri."

Secretary Anderson suggested various branches of the allied trades for the common purpose of helping New England industry.

MOTHER ILL; FAMILY OF 11 EVICTED

Furniture Removed, Couple and 9 Children Remain in Bare Tenement

With their ice box empty and their home bare of furniture, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cross of East Boston face immediate eviction from their home at 287 Chelsea st., East Boston, because their children have incurred the dislike of their landlord.

The couple have been formally evicted, but because the mother is ill and can not move, the landlord left one iron bed and one small table in the apartment when he emptied the house of its furniture.

Eight of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Cross sleep on the uncovered floor of the tenement, huddled in comforters, while Mrs. Cross occupies the iron bed with her infant son, George, born 13 days ago.

This pitiful case was revealed yesterday by Rep. James Coffey, of East Boston, who is endeavoring to alleviate their sufferings.

According to Cross, he and his family moved into the second floor tenement three months ago.

In June, Cross and Trigger went to court, and an agreement was reached whereby Cross would move out two or three days.

But Mrs. Cross gave birth to her child 13 days ago. On Tuesday, when she was still under the care of a doctor and the nurse, a furniture truck moved up to the Cross home, a cooler was removed, and every piece of furniture save a single bed, where the white-faced mother lay, was removed, and carted off to a storage warehouse.

"Boys and Girls, This Offers You a lifetime opportunity"

EARN A TOUR OF EUROPE OR A COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP

For thirty years I have wanted to make this offer. From my own boyhood there remain vivid memories of bitter struggles for the advantages of education and travel. I have looked forward to the time when I might help worthy young people over the same rough spots, and this offer is the realization of that dream.

I hope every boy and girl in this land, between the ages of 12 and 19 will know about this plan. I believe it to be the most extensive educational and travel opportunity ever offered.

Next summer a happy crowd of boys and girls will receive from The Sparks-Whitington Co. either a $750 College Scholarship or a tour of Europe with all expenses paid from the time they leave home until their return. My friends have prevailed upon me to conduct the tour personally. But this is not all. Every boy or girl who works for one of these awards will be paid for whatever success they have, regardless of whether or not they win a Scholarship or Tour.

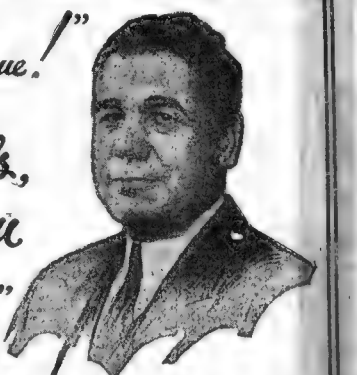

The work will be interesting and easy. You will not be expected to sell anything. You will be under the personal guidance of a responsible business man to your own community, who will help you succeed.

It costs you nothing to take advantage of this offer. It isn't a game where only a few win and others receive nothing. It is an opportunity for you ALL to work, to produce results, to earn money and to be rewarded in exact proportion to what you accomplish. In addition to the boys and girls from every section of the United States and Canada who win the Grand Awards of a College Scholarship or European Tour—every successful boy and girl will win cash. No effort will go unrewarded.

This offer ends April 15, 1931. Time is precious, so don't delay. The Sparks-Whitington Co. will give you full and complete information about this lifetime opportunity that I am offering you. Get in touch with them at once. Simply tell them that you want to know more about the Sparks-Whitington Award. They are expecting you and will furnish everything you need to start at once. BANKER AND PAL ROWING FROM GLOUCESTER TO PORTLAND

TAKE TO SEA IN 15-FOOT ROWBOAT

Start From Pigeon Cove and Have Food Enough to Last Five Days

Benton Story, young Boston banker, and Richard Hale, Rockport coast guardman, are "somewhere at sea" today in an attempt to row from Gloucester to Portland, Me., in a 15-foot skiff.

They started Tuesday at 5 p. m. from Pigeon Cove, Gloucester, their only equipment being two pairs of oars, a compass, semaphore flags for use in case of distress and ration for five days.

Weather and sea conditions made the time of their arrival at Portland a matter of much conjecture, but no reports as to their progress have been received.

Both are excellent oarsmen and members of the Gloucester Y. M. C. A., where they have won two medals for their sculling work. Story is 23 and is employed by the Old Colony Trust Co., Hale is 21 and attached to the Rockport Coast Guard station.

HOSPITAL HEAD TRANSFERRED

Rutland, July 24.—Dr. Henry Ladd Ricketts, completing five years of service as superintendent of the U. S. War Veterans' Hospital, will leave his berth here the first of August to assume the duties of the Mount Vernon Veterans' Hospital at Tupper Lake, New York.

Despite the desires of the superintendent a petition was circulated by the patients, expressing complete confidence in Dr. Ricketts and requesting that Gen. Frank Y. Hines, director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, leave Dr. Ricketts in his present berth.

While greatly complimented and deeply grateful to all the patients for their action of good will, Dr. Ricketts accepted the New York berth. The present superintendent of the New York institution, Dr. R. L. Cook, will be transferred here.

Douglas Reported as Comfortable

Congressman John J. Douglas was reported as comfortable at City Hospital early today.

Though his name has not yet been removed from the danger list his recovery from the effects of two pulmonary hemorrhages, which he suffered in his East Boston home last Friday, has been steady since the beginning of the week, doctors state.

Girl Escapes Death Under Trolley Car

She has injuries to her head and left side and lacerations of the face and legs.

She's Mother to All Lost Children at Revere Beach

Year Time

All Quiet

THE PHOTOGRAPHER who took these pictures at the Metropolitan Police Station, Revere, said he wouldn't take the woman's job for a million dollars. He said her name should be changed to Galant. At left you see two tots, brought in as "lost." The girl is all wild with fear that she'll not see mother again. The boy takes the situation more philosophically. But on the right is a different story. Mrs. Ellen Galant, the matron, has quieted the little miss. What a job.

Getting Lost Is Best Sport at Revere

Fifty thousand children can't be wrong. When it comes to voting on the most popular amusement at Revere Beach they certainly should know. The roller coaster?

No. The flying horses?

Nope.

The ferris wheel?

Wrong.

The airplanes?

Wrong again.

The "lost children's" playground supervised by Mrs. Ellen Galant at the Metropolitan Police station. Yes!

Mrs. Galant has been the matron at the "Met" station on the beach for 30 years. In that time, she estimated today, she has been the temporary mother to 50,000 youngsters who, in the crush of summer crowds, have become separated from their elders and officially listed "lost" at the station house.

That is a very conservative estimate of the number of children given into Mrs. Galant's custody figured on a season of 10 weeks each year it is only slightly more than 150 lost boys and girls every week and on some hot days as many as 40 and 70 children are taken to the station to await the arrival of frantic parents.

Mrs. Galant is a widow. Her home is at 788 Winthrop ave., Revere, and her own children have long since grown up. Perhaps that is why she does such an excellent job with her temporary, cosmopolitan pupils.

Mrs. Galant has a repertoire of children's songs about bears and rabbits and birds and one of the quickest ways to dry up tears, she has found, is to get a songster started.

"Of course some of them are claimed in a few minutes," said Mrs. Galant. "Others spend the day while their parents make an attempt to discover their whereabouts. I have a suspicion that some mothers and dads may 'lose' their children right near the station knowing that they will be well cared for. Of course, it's only a suspicion.

"Parents are nearly always excited when they come to the station to inquire whether their child has been turned in. I have seen some mothers in hysterics. They come into the room and look over the assemblage and if the one sought is there—well, it depends. Some time the children get kissed and sometimes they get spankings.

AUTO GARRETT TOOK IS FOUND

The automobile which Mrs. Mabel Copeland, Roxbury widow, claimed had been taken by Oliver R. Garrett, fugitive defaulter, was said today to be waiting her disposal at the farm of George Garrett, the former liquor retailer's father, outside Portsmouth, N. H.

Attorney Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for Garrett, said he had notified Attorney Sylvester Kaufman the car was available at any time.

According to his story, Oliver R. Garrett took the car at the request of Mrs. Copeland, widow of Nelson G. Copeland, his first cousin. Garrett, according to his father, paid one note on the car, but while he was driving to Portsmouth to visit his parents, the machine broke down in Topfield.

Later the elder Garrett got it from the Portsmouth repair shop and started for the farm in the machine, which again broke down. It was towed to the farm and there remains, according to Garrett a relic.

HOLDUP VICTIMS IDENTIFY LONE SUSPECT

One Man Clubbed by Gunman in Dorchester; Others Give Up Money on Demand

Alleged by the police to be the lone gunman who staged the hold-ups in Dorchester early today, Frank Desmond, 37, of Woodrow ave., Dorchester, was arrested at his home and later identified by six of his victims, according to police.

Leo Solomon of Arbutus St. told the police he was approached by a man, whom he later identified as Desmond, and was clubbed on the head with a revolver.

Two minutes later a man robbed Alexander Rose and Roselyn Davis of $10 in a car in Colander St. An hour later, three men sitting in a sedan in Whitfield St. were robbed of $3.38. They were Arthur Carson, Joseph Zadorauskas and Charles J. Kallinauskas.

Desmond will be arraigned in Dorchester tomorrow on charges of robbery while armed.

Full Bench Upholds $22,000 Verdict

The full bench of the Supreme Court today overruled an appeal of the Mabel Press Manufacturing Company which won a verdict of $22,112.17 against the city of Boston in a landmark case but though the amount, too small.

The city had taken several parcels of land for the rapid transit

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

NEW CHRYSLER DESIGN HAS LOW LINES

By FRED ZEDER
Vice President in Charge of Engineering of Chrysler Corp.

Chrysler and body engineers worked literally shoulder to shoulder to work out the design and produce the original Chrysler Eight car. Instead of periodic conferences in which, at best, it is possible for one branch of the engineering staff to present only half the picture to the other branches, body and chassis engineers worked together in close up a body and chassis assembly to get an automobile would be designed as a whole around the chassis. The entire second year of our engineering building was given over to the building up of the experimental model of the new Chrysler Eight and Imperial Eight model.

ROAD TO BE LOWER

Both the body engineers and the chassis engineers agreed that a car to meet the desires of the public must be much lower than cars have previously been made. However, this lowering had to be achieved without any sacrifice of ground clearance beneath the chassis or without loss of headroom in the body. Chassis engineers have always been asking for lower bodies and body engineers have been asking for lower chassis. In this case they cut out the red tape and the conferences and side by side the engineers from all departments' work up these cars together, working in hand.

When you place into the hands of the driving public cars that are capable of extreme speed, low center of gravity is one of the outstanding requirements of the car if road stability and safety are to be secured. The new double drop frame of the Chrysler Eight cars has been the despair of expert race builders.

RADICALLY NEW

It is so radically new, from a designer's standpoint, that many of those experts in this line of work who are now so enthusiastic about it were among those who thought that it simply could not be done. Our welding experts are awed in a large measure to the credit for their skill in actually producing by hand the form of the Chrysler Eight cars combined under one of both chassis and body engineers.

With this new side wall form which actually carries the double drop idea out to the logical conclusion, the rest of the design naturally followed. The body rests upon a new frame side members without loss of space or interior height and clever design permits a seating and leg-room arrangement that contrasts materially to the more worthy comfort and ease of control of this car.

The "feet" of the car is due primarily to the low center of gravity but has been secured, plus a perfect balance and distribution of weight throughout.

STYLE TREND IN WILLYS SEEN

The extent to which the efforts of the motor car stylist have borne fruit in recent years is seen in the new Willys Eight, the latest offering of the Willys-Chrysler Co. in the medium price field. Here is a motor car selling at a price within the reach of hundreds of thousands of persons and yet this car has many of the luxuries, the refinements and the details of style that not so long ago appeared only in the most expensive cars.

Persons who make a study of the automotive industry and those individuals who have long had a genuine interest in its progress are authority for the statement that this automobile buyer gets a tremendous "run for his money."

As the mechanical development of the motor car has progressed immeasurably in recent years so has its style development. In the new Willys Eight, for example, four wheels were whole in the under work, trunk rack, an arrangement of chromium parking side and double acting shock absorbers at front and rear.

STOCK TRENDS OF THE DAY

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

Trading Volume Is Small on Big Stock Exchange

New York, July 24.—Feature of trading today on the New York Stock Exchange was the small volume of trading. At frequent intervals during the day the ticker tape remained stationary.

The bullish forces were evidently restrained on their own. They exerted themselves just enough to afford the support sufficient at times to hold the leaders at concessions of a point or two from yesterday's price levels and to discourage any very substantial rally.

INCIDENT TO EASE

On the whole, the list was inclined to ease, with a few shares losing 3 to 6 points or more. Price trends changed frequently in extremely dull trading. There were fairly substantial dips at times, followed by moderate rallies.

The General Motors earnings statement, showing net of $1.34 a share for the first six months compared to $2.01 in the same period last year, was generally regarded with satisfaction. The substantial improvement in the company's cash position since the first of the year was also gratifying, and the stock was firmly supported by the market.

Wall Street is now waiting rather impatiently for U. S. Steel's earnings statement, due next Tuesday. U. S. Steel & Company, however, has not yet announced the company's second quarter earnings.

While this will only aggregate $1.50 a share, the first six months of 1929, it compares favorably to the full year's dividend requirement of $1.50 a share, and exceeds the dividend of the like period of either 1928 or 1929.

There have been some rumors that directors would declare a $1 dividend, but they are without credence.

REPORTS ARE PLEASING

Results of major corporations so far reporting for the first half year have been gratifying, but the smaller corporations have not done so well. Hollander Brothers, for instance, reported a decline in sales for the first six months of 1929, the first decline in sales since 1927.

Among the day's news no pleasing news was announced of a 10 per cent wage reduction by National Cash Register and extension of Ford Motor's shutdown for another week. No explanation of the first shutdown was available.

Such stocks as American Telephone & Telegraph, General Electric, General Motors were active features, but the market was generally quiet.

Gobbling Our Railroads

New England Faces Old Problem Again

By a steady process of penetration, alien railroad interests are steadily acquiring control of our New England systems. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the Penobscot Corporation, which is its subsidiary, have secured in excess of 300,000 shares of New Haven Railroad stock.

Up to last April, the same interests had attained ownership of more than seventeen per cent of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

And according to their boldly frank admissions, they are continuing and will continue to make progressive purchases into 1931.

An indication of the extent to which this ownership proceeds may be found in the fact that the Pennsylvania interests and the New Haven, which they are taking up, now jointly own more than forty-five per cent of the voting shares of the Boston & Maine.

The people of New England will wake up one fine morning and find that the independence of their famous old railroads, without which their industrial and economic progress cannot be maintained, has again been dissipated.

They may realize when it is too late to undo the damage that the New England lines have lost their local identity and usefulness and are being operated only as the tail of the kite of foreign financial influences with headquarters in New York and Philadelphia.

It is now twenty years since these same lines went through the debacle of alien ownership whose concern in New England was only casual. Once rich, they were milked dry. Bankruptcy, disordered service suffered alike by shippers and passengers and a tremendous loss suffered by the investors were the sad results.

New England ownership was regained after years of legislative battles and "investigations" and what a price was paid for it! Millions of dollars have since been poured into these roads. The shippers, passengers and investors have rebuilt them at enormous expense until they now are profitable again and supplying a very good service predicated upon the immediate needs of New England.

They stand again like the fat milk cow tempting promoters and exploiters who would draw off the cream and leave to the good people of New England the thin residue which has neither substance nor value.

The best interests of New England, from both the railroad and economic viewpoint, require that the New England railroads should maintain their New England identity. New England industries cannot prosper to their fullest degree, New England's commercial life cannot expand and New England labor, accordingly, cannot be fully employed if her railroads are to be regarded as mere feeders to major systems beyond her boundaries.

The Governors of New England know this. Their commissions have adopted their resolutions based upon that knowledge. The shippers and business men, the Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade have agreed to it. But resolutions are idle and desultory unless they are backed by action.

The official and business leaders should at once send their representatives to Washington with their protests and they should support to a man the contention of Commissioner Eastman that the acquisition of railroad systems by dummy holding corporations violates the railroad policy of the Nation.

For a Free University

Old Arguments Against It Have Disappeared

Attorney Harry Ehrlich of Chelsea, who ran errands, sold newspapers and tackled any and odd jobs to work his way through Boston University and Northeastern, asks the Boston Evening American to stimulate the interest of its readers in a campaign for establishment of a free State University in Massachusetts.

Ehrlich's quest for education in the face of handicaps should be stimulating to all young men to moderate or poor circumstances. In the light of his experience, he says:

"If free grammar schools are a good invention, why does not the same theory and logic run to the establishment of a degree-granting university, in which the ambition of young men and women for education may be accommodated?"

The question seems to answer itself. Fifteen years ago the American Federation of Labor was campaigning for a free university. The answer then was made by our conservative friends that the existing private institutions were ample to accommodate the ambitious.

But times and demands have changed. We are now given to understand that the privately-maintained institutions are jammed to the doors by those who can afford to acquire education and that the next day to send out the candidates in order that congestion may be avoided.

This condition being true the principal arguments once used against a State University is gone. Mr. Ehrlich, the labor groups and other interested parties should recommence their campaign. They will find the readers of this newspaper manifesting adequate interest, we believe.

A WARNING LIGHT

The beacon's gleam; its warning ray
Shows mariners the danger points
And warns all ships to keep away.

Note well the meaning of the light
That flashes clear across the skies
And marks the presence of the rocks
Where, all unseen, disaster lies.

McINTYRE ABROAD

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON, JULY 24—Just as Samuel Pepys, the diarist, was the typical Londoner so is The Strand the city's typical street. It is ugly, narrow, harsh. And yet somehow we all fall under its spell. Like Broadway it is despised and reviled but remains another crossroads of the world.

The charm of the Strand to me is in its sudden curves. One minute you may be a part of its crowded clutter but by ducking into any of those innumerable alleys you may be on the banks of the Thames, the Adelphi Terrace, among the flowers of Covent Garden or in the brooding quiet of Essex st.

The Strand is the promenade for foreigners—especially Americans. The great hotels, like the Savoy and Cecil, cafes, like the Romano's and the Adelphi, the Gaiety, tend to cosmopolitanize the district. True Londoners look upon it as a yoke lane but on an evening out they always visit The Strand.

This morning I strolled along Charing Cross station in a walk along the Strand. Deposits always fascinate me. Everybody is on tip-toe of expectancy and under the glow of excitement. From there I wandered among rare old houses in Adelphi Terrace. No houses in the Terrace have been changed.

Garrick died in No. 4, so a tablet states. Darrell claimed No. 2. James St. in the Terrace as his birthplace. At No. 2 Robert St. Thomas Hood carved his "Song of the Shirt." All houses, shops and Adams celling and fireplace and furniture by Sheraton and Heppelwhite. You are hushed by an intangible restraint. Somehow in browsing about my mind was filled with thoughts of men like Pepys who toyed with goblets of incomparable claret, had an appraising eye for a pretty face, fondled rare books and chatted before huge open fireplaces. For men in gloomy old London have always lived with a superb gusto.

It is only the gaudy omnibuses that relieve the gravity of London streets. Without them, there would be no color. On one coming down the hill from Charing Cross to Whitehall I recognised my wife and trotted along to catch up with her. Failing I yelled "Too hoo!" which seemed vastly to amuse pedestrians.

Fleet Street is London's Park Row and is hung heavily with the aroma of printer's ink. To those of us accustomed to the quick gait of American newspaper work the tempo of Fleet street seems leisurely and obsolete. The terms "scopy" or "beat" suggest the chill of a death's head at the feet. The London reporter is a true "gentleman of the press." He carries engraved cards, sports a lapel flower and upon auspicious occasions dons a tall black top hat. Yet those of us who have spent formative years pulling doorbells and asking impertinent questions are impressed with its journalistic dignity, as stately indeed as one of Sir Christopher Wren's local apices.

The headline hunters here do not have to swipe furtive peeks from the first pages while passing newspapers. The latest news of the day is proclaimed by men, encased turtle-like in bill-boards who walk along the curb slowly with such red banners as "Murder in Chapman" or "Lady Astor Rebuked," etc. Incidentally, rebuking Lady Astor appears to be one of the indoor sports in Parliament.

No visit to London is to snuff without a visit to George B. Shaw or the Marble Arch entrance of Hyde Park where political firebrands blow off steam. For a small fee they may mount the portable platform and deliver themselves forensically of their pet grievances. One while I was there was "laying out" Premier MacDonald and took a shot at the United States with: "Hamerica, what is she doin'?" I am abating this evening to find out how that my curiosity is so aroused.

It is no easy trick to get lemonade unsold in London but with the usual flair for solving problems that do not matter I have found a way. One asks for a "lemon squash." They bring you a lemon cut in halves, a bucket of ice, a lemon squeezer, spoon, sugar, straws. In fact everything but a passport—and you make it yourself. I not only made lemonade but removed ink stains from my finger with the rinds.

At breakfast this morning in one of the hurry up places on Ferny street the waitress seemed surprised at my heavy order. I got and devoured part of it but the rest never came although I waited and waited. I don't know what happened unless they figured I had eaten enough.

Commercial candor in a little shop in Chesapeake:

"Eat one of our American sandwiches and you'll never eat another."

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

MISS KING prattled brother-and-sister matings on a strain of albino rats for generations after, selecting vigorous specimens. After 20 generations of this her rats were all the better for it: they averaged weight was lighter, the fertility (number of young per litter) had increased, and even the individual life span had lengthened a little.

Today, after more than fifty generations of inbreeding, the strain is still going strong, a standing proof that inbreeding is not harmful per se.

In general, nevertheless, it is true that as inbred stock degenerates. And the opposite is also true: a cross between separate strains usually produces strong, vigorous offspring. Everybody has heard of the stimulating effect of "fresh blood" on a race.

Big breeders who want rapid maturing animals for bacon are in the habit of crossing two different breeds, for they know that the hybrid animal will grow up more rapidly than either stock. The same method is often practiced for the same reason, with cattle, sheep and poultry. Even when the result of a cross is sterile it may exceed its parents in vigor.

The strength, endurance and resistance to disease of the mule are well known; the sterile hybrid of a redish and a cabbage grows into a rampant bulb ten feet in height. But here also these are exceptions, and a cross may not exceed its parents as conspicuous as is expected. A curious and, at first sight, rather lawless mass of facts! But this mystery of inbreeding and outbreeding is one of those compartments of biology which have been swept and cleaned and put in order by geneticists in the last 20 years. Today the rationale of the subject is plain enough.

Consider a family of brother and sister animals or plants, whose stock shows no inbreeding for several generations back. They will have two parents, four grandparents, eight great-grandparents.

If, on the other hand, one of the grandparental couple had been a brother-and-sister mating, the family will only have six great-grandparents.

Clever Boy, Marvelous Girl

Both Americans, One From the Atlantic, One From the Pacific

ACTION
HELEN WILLS MOODY, IN HER LATEST TRIUMPH, "HEAD AND SHOULDERS ABOVE ANY OTHER WOMAN PLAYER"

Two great international struggles in tennis and golf are ended for 1930 in England.

The groups of players have dispersed. The applauding gatherings of watchers have scattered.

And in these pictures, you see the two champions, BOTH AMERICANS, Helen Wills Moody from the edge of the Pacific, conqueror of all women tennis players from all the countries of Europe, as well as all the female champion tennis players of America.

And below is the picture of "Bobby" Jones, of Georgia, on the Atlantic Coast, so far ahead of all other golf players that the golf critics, from the grandson of the great scientist, Darwin, down, acclaim him "one with whom no other can be compared, one that establishes his own standards."

The London papers, under the picture of Helen Wills Moody, of California, write as a matter of course, "head and shoulders above any other woman player in the world."

They print pictures of Robert T. Jones, of Atlanta, and add to his name "greatest of golf players, amateur, or professional, in all golf history."

The games of golf and tennis call for every athletic quality that the human body possesses.

They demand in tennis, speed, INSTANTANEOUS ACTION which means perfect co-ordination of brain, sight, nerves and muscles.

THOUGHT
BOBBY JONES. HE WINS BECAUSE HE THINKS

They demand in golf, as in tennis, sound judgment, a capacity to remain calm under excitement, persistent physical and mental courage.

You cannot be a world champion at either of these games unless you possess mentally and physically a marvellously perfect human machine, and, especially, first-class THINKING power.

These pictures interest and encourage Americans. In American championship, THERE IS NO EAST, NO WEST, no North, no South.

The boy that surprised the British most at the Wimbledon championship was Wilmer Allison, from Texas, a State in which you could lose England, a State that, intensively cultivated, could feed the 1,500,000,000 people that live on this earth.

California or Georgia or Maine, it is all one. The American race, which represents the ambition and energy of Europe, crossing the ocean to this country, develops, improves AND WINS.

Young men and young women will notice two things, for their own good, in these pictures.

Helen Wills Moody and Robert T. Jones are world champions not merely because they have good bodies, wonderful muscles, magnificently adjusted nerves. They win BECAUSE THEY THINK.

Look at the picture of Bobby Jones, crouching down, preparing, MENTALLY, to make the shot that must not fail.

He does not HURRY, he does not DAWDLE.

He takes the time necessary, looks carefully, measures conditions, THINKS, shoots, and wins.

These pictures should inspire young Americans and develop in them, not foolish pride, but a determination to do something worth while, something worthy of the opportunity that this country offers.
